

General Surgeon

The Department of Surgery at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in El Paso is seeking a BC/BE General Surgeon with expertise in trauma/critical care who has an interest in developing a career in academic surgery. The position is a full-time faculty appointment at TTUHSC and the salary is competitive.

The Health Sciences Center and its University Hospital supports eleven residencies in the major disciplines. The Surgery Residency is fully accredited and graduates three chief residents per year. The University Health Sciences Center has recently received approval from the Texas Legislature to develop a medical school on the El Paso Campus. This is a unique opportunity for an individual to join a young dynamic surgical faculty.

TTUHSC's surgery residency program is affiliated with Thomason Hospital, which is the only Level I trauma center for a 250 mile radius serving 1.1 million individuals. The trauma program admits 2,200 patients annually of which 91% sustain blunt trauma.

El Paso is a rapidly growing city on the Texas-Mexico border. The Health Sciences Center is also expanding and presents opportunities and challenges to potentially interested faculty. We enjoy a warm, dry, sunny climate, which allows outdoor activities twelve months a year. The selected candidate will actively participate in medical student/resident education, research and will perform a wide variety of surgical procedures.
